HASCS want to make sure you are receiving good care.

We listen to you so we can find out what is and what is not working with your care.

Our carers and nurses have a duty to look after you and involve you in your care.

There are people who check we are supporting people well. They are called the Care Quality Commission.

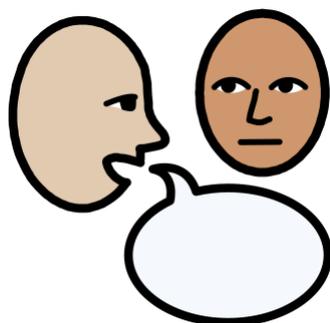

There are also people in HASCS who make sure we are supporting people well. This is our Quality and Governance Team.

You can tell your carers if they're doing good or bad with your care.

You can also tell your Regional Nurse Manager.

If you don't feel comfortable telling them, we have an easy read form you can fill out.

If there is something you are not happy with, we will work with you to change it.
